The Man Who Found the Truth

Leonid Nikolayevich ANDREYEV (1871 - 1919), translated by Herman BERNSTEIN (1876 - 1935)

An old man, accused of having murdered his family as a young man, spends a lifetime in prison. With brilliant psychological insight so characteristic of Leonid Andreyev's work, we follow this man telling his story about his obsession with truth and lies and his religion of the iron grate, tinged with madness, and not necessarily reliable.. - Summary by Carolin
